Making Sense of Leadership Strategy

You have a Business Strategy, a Marketing Strategy, An HR Strategy. Perhaps you have a Technology Strategy, a Product Strategy and a Financial Strategy?

And yet it is still difficult for people to understand and collectively work towards achieving what you need?

The missing ingredient is the leader that brings it all to life, makes it all simple to understand, and makes the link between strategy and reality. We now realize the importance of one strategy that makes it all happen – The Leadership Strategy.

Without this, many people live in an organization made up of silos, isolated scorecards and the pressures of goals and KPIs which have limited meaning or personal connection.

Join us at the MCE Roundtable in Zürich to “Make Sense of Leadership Strategy”, and discuss:

- What type of leaders do you need, how many and where?
- What does your future leadership look like and what are the trends in leadership development?
- What skills and behaviours do leaders need to shape a healthy culture?
- What is happening to the talent pipeline and your bench-strength?
- Why organizational design needs to be redefined?
