

→ Leading in a VUCA world

If the wind of change is blowing strongly, you may decide to build walls around you – or windmills!

Leadership in today's world is all about making sure that the business leader manages to convince everyone else in the company to build windmills. This is quite a challenge in our "VUCA-world", where "VUCA" stands for: Volatility, Uncertainty, Complexity and Ambiguity.

Old leadership approaches like the "stick and carrot" approach or even the purely directive leadership style do more and more fail to motivate people in an organization.

The focus of this breakfast session is to show, how leadership must work in the year 2019 and beyond. These principles are not only presented with a lot of "infotainment" like storytelling and interactive exercises. The principles are also demonstrated "live" by including the entire audience to impact the session via an innovative "voting system" via their mobile phones.

Learn and experience all you need to know, no matter whether you are CEO, Managing Director or HR Director.

Be ready for a humorous and mind-blowing session!

The MCE Business Breakfast session will cover :

- Why organizations need a completely new understanding of "leadership"
- What is this "VUCA – world" that everyone is talking about?
- The most effective strategies for CEOs, MDs and HR Directors.
- Interactive parts, where the audience can give instant feedback about the presentation with the help of a special software
- Concrete recommendations for how to lead in a VUCA-world
- Open forum, including a discussion of your questions and ideas

This breakfast event is relevant for Senior Managers, HR and L&D Professionals in international companies and organizations.
